A leadership development program for women

AVRIL HENRY AND ASSOCIATES

Women make up:

52%
OF THE POPULATION OF AUSTRALIA

45%
OF THE AUSTRALIAN WORKFORCE

56%
OF UNIVERSITY GRADUATES

So do you have a strategy to develop women for leadership roles in your organisation?

Are women well represented in senior and executive roles in your organisation?

Developing women in your organisation's existing workforce provides excellent opportunity to utilise your own human capital to create a competitive global advantage.

The aim of this development program is to empower participants, and further develop their management and leadership skills in preparation for more senior roles in your organisation. Increasingly this is becoming a compliance issue with the ASX requiring organisations to increase the number of women on their boards.

Charities supported

For each program, 5% of the profits are donated to provide financial support to either women or children in need through appropriate not-for-profit organisations.

Course Outline, Benefits and Facilitator

DAY 1: INFLUENCING THROUGH COMMUNICATION AND LISTENING

- » understanding your communication style and that of others
- » how we communicate in normal situations and how that changes under pressure
- » basic principles of effective communication and active listening
- » the differences in how men and women communicate
- » communicating effectively across the generations.

Communication is a central part of our lives, professionally and personally. Verbal or non-verbal, intentional or unintentional, active or passive, communication is essential to almost everything we do. In fact, most of us spend between 50% and 75% of our days communicating in writing, face to face, inside our heads, by email or over the telephone. It is critical to our success and fortunately, is a skill we can all develop.

DAY 2: RESOLVING CONFLICT CONSTRUCTIVELY, NETWORKING AND MANAGING YOUR CAREER

- » conflict resolution fundamentals
- » creating a win-win scenario
- » using the Conflict Map to effectively analyse and resolve conflict
- » turning conflict into collaborative opportunities
- » use a Career Swot Analysis tool to advance to the next level
- » how to network effectively and strategically
- » creating your own brand and managing your image.

Conflict is often avoided by people in organisations and this generates adverse consequences for all parties. The first part of the day enables participants to recognise that during conflict people often don't pay as much attention to the other person's needs as they do to their own. It helps participants to understand how through constructive conflict resolution a difficult situation can be turned into a win-win scenario. In the afternoon participants will reflect on their careers, and their future potential. Practical, interactive exercises enhance the networking skills to improve your own brand and presence.

DAY 3: FINDING BALANCE AND LEADING THE FUTURE WORKFORCE

- » exploring the dimensions of Work/Life Balance
- » does it exist? Is it possible to have it all?
- » can you pursue other interests in life that are important to you?
- » leadership skills required now and in the future
- » what makes an effective and inspiring leader?
- » what leadership capabilities are needed to succeed in the workplace?
